Rhythm Of The Rain*By John Claud Gummoe*

Listen to the rhythm of the falling rain
Telling me just what a fool I've been.
I wish that it would go and let me cry in vain
And let me be alone again.

The only girl I care about has gone away,
Looking for a brand new start.
But little does she know that when she left that 46.
Along with her she took my heart.

Rain please tell me now does that seem fair
For her to steal my heart away when she doesn't care.
I can't love another when my heart's somewhere far away

Rain won't you tell her that I love her so.
Please ask the sun to set her heart aglow.
Rain in her heart and let the love we knew start to grow.

Listen to the rhythm of the falling rain.
Telling me just what a fool I've been.
I wish that it would go and let me cry in vain
And let me be alone again.
Oh, listen to the falling rain.

Ivan Harold Clevory writes notes about his work from time to time. Here are two of them.

The Night Pass

It gets so busy up here that many of us forget to "stop and smell the roses." So, before bedtime tonight, I finally took a moment to watch the world go by during a night pass. I think I haven't done this since I boarded MWS two weeks ago. This is what it's like...

You stay at the window as you pass by in the night. For about three to five minutes, right before the sun comes up, there's total black. You're just floating in a sea of black. Then you're going to experience the most amazing moment up here—watching the sunlight coming out—red, orange, and then bright white colors all flowing to you. This is so different from the sunrise you see on earth, but it only lasts for a very short time because we're flying high above our planet, traveling faster than any airplanes. Soon the night is gone and no stars can be seen. They are waiting for the night which will come in another 45 minutes to show themselves again.

Orion's Belt

Tonight I got lucky. I was able to take a good picture of Orion's Belt—Mintaka, Alnilam, and Alnitak — some of the most famous stars in the night sky, also known as the Three Kings. They make up one of the most well-known and easy-to-find asterisms—Orion's Belt. If you want to see Orion at night, just look for the Three Kings; then you can find other stars, such as Betelgeuse and Rigel, in Orion. After I posted the picture on my Facebook page, I got hundreds of posts back. Many say that they look brighter up here...

49. () What is Ivan Harold Clevory?
(A) A pilot. (B) A gardener. (C) A photographer. (D) An astronaut.
50. () According to the notes, which is TRUE?
(A) The night lasts for about three to five minutes.
(B) It's not easy to take a picture of Orion's Belt.
(C) MWS is the name of an airplane.
(D) Ivan Harold Clevory doesn't get on the Net.
