Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. Many people think that it is difficult to learn English; so, they don't like it. (21), I think it is a very interesting subject. I've enjoyed learning English since I was a child. My mom always tells me, " (22) If you really want something, you must try hard to get it." That's why she pushed me so hard. When I was in third-grade, my teacher encouraged me to enter as many English storytelling contests as possible. I was (23) in front of people, so I almost forgot what I had to say. As soon as I left from the stage, the only thing that I thought was that I failed. I didn't feel down at that time, but kept that experience in mind so that I could always encourage myself to be better.

I realized(明瞭) that no matter what the results(結果) are, I should at least (24) and learn from it. If you don't try, you will never know who you really are.

21. (A) Finally. (B) For example (C) However (D) Besides

The Chinese say, " If you're bitten by a snake once, you'll be scared by a rope for ten years." I have my own experience of this.

It (25) one night. I was cooking dinner, and at that moment, I really needed to go to the bathroom. Without turning the gas off, I quickly went to the bathroom. When I finished, I couldn't open the door. " I can't get out!" I shouted. I became worried that I (26) in a fire!

" No!" I kicked the door hard but it didn't move an inch. I turned around and saw hope. I hurried over to the window and pushed it really hard. (27) I just couldn't open it. I would have to break it. I started hitting it with the hardest thing I could find — a trash can.

With a loud "BANG," the window broke. " I'm safe!" I took in the fresh air happily. (28), the cold wind woke me from my joy. I was on the tenth floor and there was no way to get down! I kept shouting for help. Luckily, someone heard me and called 119.

Since then, I've never closed the door when I use my bathroom. (109 會考補考)  took in 吸收

IV 閱讀測驗 Reading 每題 2 分；共 20 分

The Wilsons decided to go overseas for a vacation. They had a family meeting to plan the vacation.

“First, Mr. Wilson said, “we should decide where we want to go.” “I don’t agree,” Mrs. Wilson said. “I think we should decide when we want to go first. We don’t want to go to some countries when they’re cold.”

Mr. Wilson agreed, so the family’s first decision was when to go on a vacation. They decided to go in July, when it’s warm throughout the northern hemisphere.

“Now we can decide where to go,” Mr. Wilson said. “But, Dad,” Ben said, “don’t you think that where we go depends on how we go? If we plan to fly, we can go a long way. If we plan to drive, we can’t go as far.”

Again Mr. Wilson agreed, and they discussed this. At last, they agreed to travel by plane. Then Mr. Wilson said, “Now, where do we want to go?”

“Actually, Dad,” Trudy said, “I think we should work out how many days vacation we’ll have before we can decide where to go.”

And so the meeting went on. The next day, one of Mr. Wilson’s friends at work asked, “Have you planned your vacation yet? We’ve decided when we want to go, how long we can go for, how we want to get there and how much money we can spend,” Mr. Wilson took him, “but we still haven’t decided where we’re going!”

Hans Christian Andersen

One of the world's greatest storytellers, Hans Christian Andersen was born on April 2, 1805, in Denmark. He was the son of a poor shoemaker. After his father's death, he traveled to Copenhagen to try out for the theater. He hoped to become an actor, but his real talent was for writing and he first became known for his poetry. He also wrote plays, novels and travel books, but while many of these are now almost unknown outside Denmark, his fairy tales are famous around the world.

His first collection of fairy tales, Tales Told for Children, was published in 1835 and included such favorites as The Tinderbox and The Princess and the Pea. His most famous fairy tales, however, are The Ugly Duckling, The Snow Queen and The Little Mermaid. There probably isn't a child in the world who hasn't read at least one of these, or had it read to them.

Shortly before his death, in August 1875, he was asked what music he would like played at his funeral. "It should be in time with little steps," he said, "because most of the people at my funeral will be children."

There is a statue of the Little Mermaid in Copenhagen Harbor. It was put there because the Danish are very proud of their most famous writer.
