Dear Annie,

I am a fifteen-year-old student. I love singing. My teachers and classmates think I sing very well. They like it. My dream is to become a superstar like A-mei or Jolin. Every day I practice singing. And this week, a big singing contest is coming. I want to join it. If I get first place in the contest, maybe I can record my own CD.

But my parents want me to study well and get good grades. They don’t like me to practice singing or join the contest. They hope I can become a doctor, just like my father. But that’s not my dream. What can I do?
