Fables are short stories with special messages. These morals teach both adults and children lessons about good and bad, and right and wrong. They show them the right way to behave and treat other people. However, fables don't have many people in them. They usually have animals and forces of nature like the sun and the wind, and they talk and act just __31__ people.

When it comes to these kinds of stories, Aesop's Fables are very popular. Although the stories are really old, they are funny and interesting. Many adults read them to children, and many teachers share them __32__ their students. Fables are great fun!

Lucy : Look! Mom left us a note. She will be home late tonight, __33__.

Simon : Does that mean we can have anything we want in the house?

Lucy : She didn't say that we couldn't, so I guess we can.

Simon : Yeah! I'm going to have my favorite cereal. Also, it tastes so good that I can eat it every day.

Lucy : I think I will make myself a ham and cheese sandwich.

Simon : Hey! This is not the cereal I usually have. Mom switched my favorite for another.

Lucy : You're right. It looks different.

Simon : And it smells different, too. Mine smells like candy, but this one smells like stinky tofu.

Lucy : Yuck! I can't stand stinky tofu. So, are you going to try it?

Simon : I have no choice because I already opened the bag.

Lucy : __34__

Simon : It tastes strange, but in a good way because it's a little sweet and a little sour at the same time.

Have you ever seen a person or an animal that changes from female to male? No, I don't mean in the movies. A fish called the blackspot angelfish can really do so.

The angelfish live in groups, and each group has one male fish and four female fish. The male is different from the females in color. And he is the strongest and the largest member of the group. He protects the females and acts like their "security guard". When the male dies, the group needs a new "security guard". This is when the largest female fish in the group begins to change its appearance. She begins to grow larger in size. After a week, she starts changing color, from yellow to blue. Slowly, she begins to act like a male. Two weeks later, black stripes appear on her body. This shows that the gender change is done. She is now a male fish and the new leader of the group!

Many people don't like spiders. People especially don't feel comfortable near large ones. It's hard not to notice them because thick hair covers their bodies. But in Cambodia, they are treated very differently. Now let's take a look at the story of Sokha and the spiders.

Sokha is a young boy from Cambodia. He isn't very tall. He's small for his age because he doesn't get enough meat to eat. His family raises geese, but people will only eat them on special days. So, what does Sokha do when he wants to have some meat? He hunts for big spiders.

To hunt for a spider, Sokha has to look for a spider's hiding hole first. When he finds a spider in a hole, he digs hard to make it come out. Sokha needs to be very careful because a spider bite hurts a lot. One time, a really large spider- it was almost 15 centimeters long bit Sokha on the toe.

Sometimes Sokha is lucky and can collect more than ten spiders for his family in a day. After he brings them home, people eat spiders with rice. For Sokha and his family, spiders aren't something scary. They are delicious food.
